

WASHINGTON TAKES MacARTHUR TO ITS HEART WITH HERO'S WELCOME; CONQUEROR OF PACIFIC REACHES THE NATIONAL AIRPORT SHORTLY AFTER MIDNIGHT

The Whole World Tensely Awaits Address Before Congress

WORDS 'ROUND GLOBE

Anticipate That 40 Million People Will See Him Over Television

By Bob Considine
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Apr. 19.—(INS)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur, stripped of command and disavowing all political aspirations, makes a historic report to Congress today on Far Eastern affairs.

The capital of the nation, in whose service MacArthur dedicated 50 years of his life, took the returning General to its heart with a hero's welcome.

The conqueror of the Pacific, relieved of command by Presidential order just eight days ago, stepped from his plane at Washington National Airport at 12:35 a. m. (EST). He was given a tumultuous and slightly riotous welcome.

This morning, the General with his wife and son, rested in the Presidential suite at the Statler Hotel while the whole world tensely awaited his address before a joint meeting of Congress at 12:30 p. m. (EST).

Network officials said more than 40 million people will see him over television and another 40 million will hear him on radio. News wires, cables and the wireless will carry his words around the civilized world.

MacArthur completely divorced himself from politics in a brief talk in San Francisco before enplaning for Washington. There he said he had been asked whether he would enter upon a political career.

The General added: "My answer was 'no.' The only politics I have is contained in a simple phrase known to all of you—God Bless America."

"I have no political aspirations whatsoever. I do not intend to run for any political office and I hope that my name will never be used in a political way."

Crossing the nation from San Francisco, he was met at the airport by a large crowd of people.

A DAY TO REMEMBER

Today is a day to keep in mind, to mark down on the calendars, to tell your grandchildren about.

There's never been a day like it before in all American history. The nearest approach was Wednesday, March 4, 1868, which is the day on which the trial of President Andrew Johnson on articles of impeachment began in the United States Senate.

Congress will turn out in full force to listen to and to pay homage to a general who has just been ignominiously fired from a military and diplomatic post of the greatest responsibility in all the world.

Congress will hear General Douglas MacArthur, but the man who is really on trial today is President Harry Truman, the man who wouldn't move against the crooks, confidence-men and communists entrenched in the national government, but who angrily dismissed an outstanding war hero for daring to disagree with him.

President Truman is on trial, not before the court of impeachment as provided by the Constitution to remove presidents at the discretion of the U. S. Senate, but before the court of public opinion.

He has been turned against and condemned by the American electorate as probably no other chief executive in the annals of this country. For once, his wicked temper and rash judgment have gone completely out of bounds. A tolerant public that condoned and overlooked obscene abuse scribbled on White House stationery has risen in wrath over the same type of approach to the sensitive problems of world diplomacy.

President Truman has gone too far. His punishment will be, not removal from office—for that Constitutional redress has been made virtually impossible by reason of patronage-influenced partisanship—but the sullen disapproval of the great bulk of this nation's one hundred and fifty million inhabitants.

As for General MacArthur, his lustre has gained rather than diminished by reason of his summary discharge. "Dishonorable" as this discharge may have been

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.
(Copyright, 1951
King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, April 19.—General Douglas MacArthur has long believed there comes a time in the life of every soldier when he must decide between blind obedience to a superior and the welfare of his nation.

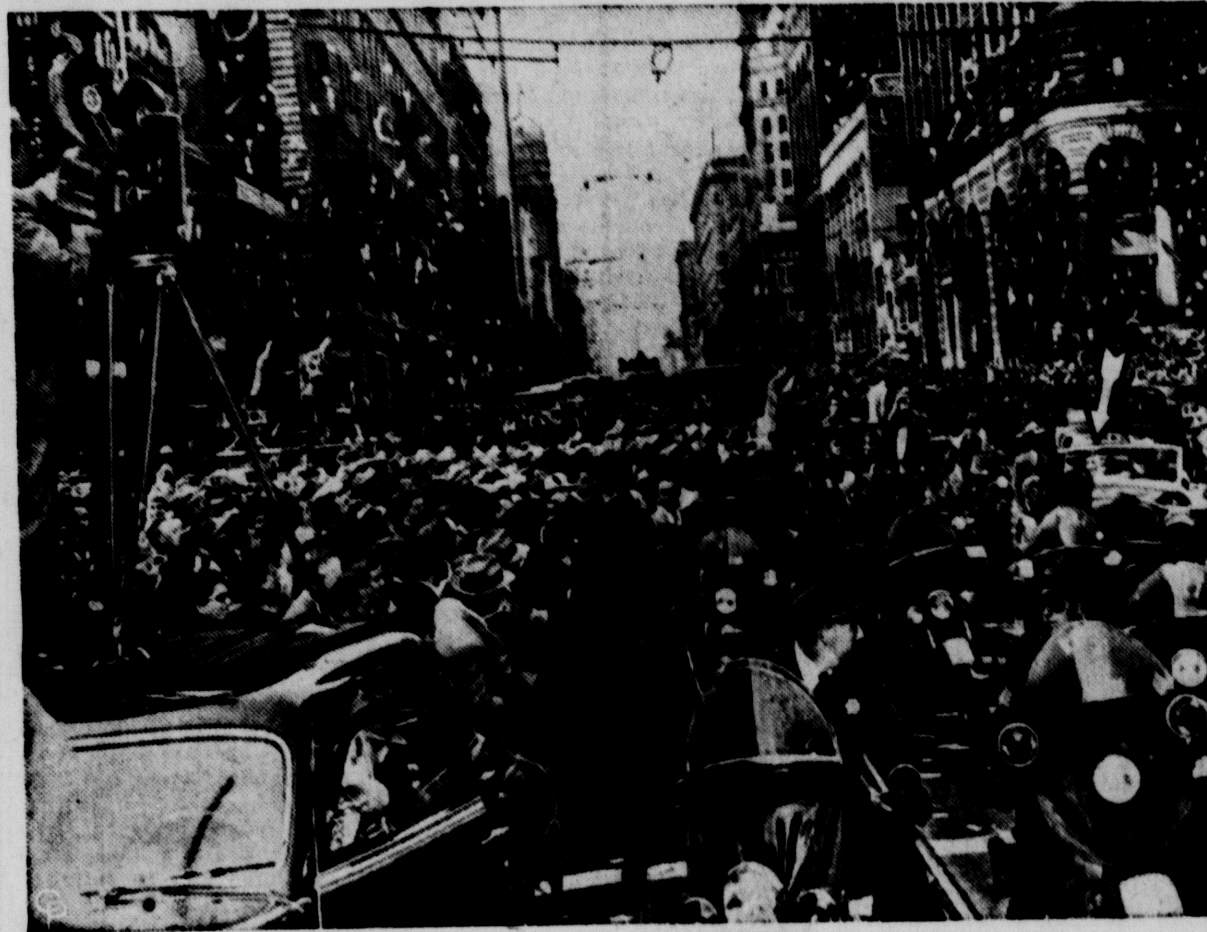

The degree of intensity surrounding such a decision varies with the rank of the soldier who must make the choice. For MacArthur, the nation's greatest living soldier, the decision to speak out in opposition to what he considers the folly of our foreign policy in Asia was world-shaking and the most momentous in his lifetime.

President Truman stated when he fired the general that "full and vigorous debate on matters of national policy is a vital element in the constitutional system of our free Democracy."

Yet, Mr. Truman in the middle of the night issued the crass directive relieving MacArthur of command because the general would not be gagged. In doing so, the president obliterated the very "vital element" of free speech which created the Democracy he heads and which alone can save it.

For a decade, the state department has ignored the wishes of the American people in regard to foreign policy. It arrived at decisions via spoon-fed data from left-wing liberals and communists, and then tried to force those decisions down the throats of the American public with a vast and clever propaganda machine. When segments of the public rebelled, they were ridiculed. They needed a leader and in MacArthur they have found one.

CLAIMS FIRST STEP IN PLANNING DEVELOPMENT OF BUCKS COUNTY IS TO PREPARE A GENERAL DEVELOPMENT PLAN FOR THE SOUTHERN END

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 19.—The first step in planning for a general development of Bucks county is to prepare a general development plan for the southern end of the county. This was told to the Bucks County Planning Board in session here on Tuesday.

The speaker was Russell VanNess Black, planning expert, who resides at New Hope. Mr. Black has had 30 years of experience, and presented to the board valuable advice in meeting the county planning problems.

The development of a plan for the southern end of the county, which is considered the most critical part of the county, will serve as a guide for further improvement and development. Such a plan can then be extended to cover the remainder of the county, according to Mr. Black.

Immediate organization is necessary, stressed Mr. Black, because of the industrial growth in the lower portion of the county. The erection of the steel mill, and the turnpike extension are two of the causes for quick action. The speaker pointed out that a large organized staff will be cheaper in the long run, in completely organizing the work of the planning board, and putting the plans into action.

The next step for the planning board to take, as advised by Mr. Black, is to prepare a general development plan for the southern end of the county.

To Demand U. S. Make More Use of Nationalist China

Tokyo—Sen. Warren Magnuson (D) Wash., indicated today he will return to Washington from Asia with the demand that the United States make more use of Nationalist China in combatting Communism in Asia. Magnuson said that in Washington the one big stumbling block to further use of the military and political power of Chiang Kai-Shek is the argument that Chiang is discredited in Asia and that the U. S. would lose political and morale prestige among other Asiatics if it effected a close alliance with him. "I don't believe that is correct," Magnuson said. "Nor do I believe it to be the sentiment of most Asiatic people."

TO REVIVIFY BASEBALL

Now that a new baseball season is under way, oldsters again are lamenting what they describe as progressive decline in the quantity and quality of talent available for the professional game. Only a few kids these days have the will to learn and develop proficiency in the sport, they claim.

Everything from the wars and television to automobiles and mis-directed quest for education have been blamed for a latter-day dearth of Cobbs, Speakers, Ruths and Johnstons.

But an old-fashioned reporter of the type that digs deep for facts points to a factor in this development that is generally overlooked—the men's and boy's clothing store years ago withdrew its functional support of what long has been known as the national pastime.

Forty years ago, when parents decided they could blow seven or eight iron men for a suit for Junior—for Sunday best, of course, there was an inducement for him to accompany them to the suits and pants establishment. After coat and knickers of itchy wool had been tried on the fidgeting youngster and found satisfactory by the parents, there came the big moment.

"Well, young man," said the clerk, putting the old soft-soap malarkey into his intonations, "and now we have a little something for you back here. Just step this way, please."

"Now, what would you like? A baseball? A bat? Or a fielder's mitt? Sorry, we have no first basemen's mitts in right now."

He didn't say that any item of this wonderful equipment was free. It wasn't necessary. The whole price of the bats, balls and gloves, of course, was added to the price of the suit. But everybody seemed happy about the whole deal, and eventually every youngster had ball, bat and glove. From the sandlot experience, promoted by the clothing store, there developed the young talent which went on to minor and major leagues.

If the baseball business seeks to again flourish with exceptional talent, let it start at the roots—which means somehow providing at hidden cost the vestments of the game to the kids who are the potential stars of tomorrow.

TAXING MEAT

The idea of a luxury tax on meat is being kicked around among the fair dealers in Washington, but unless Congress abdicates completely and permits the White House to dictate what the people are to be permitted to eat, it will probably end up where Truman's letters belong. Meat is regarded as a luxury by the planners because, they assert, grain fed to livestock is an extravagance. They are convinced consumers should get their calories directly from the grain—like horses—instead of second-hand.

Government figures show that it takes 9.4 pounds of corn, when fed to a beef steer, to produce the number of calories in the form of meat that is contained in one pound of corn pone.

way. Secretary of State Acheson and the United Nations have indirectly told communist leaders that they can form and equip their divisions for the march into combat unmolested by American bombers or fighting men.

The president is a fool to indicate that General MacArthur's proposal to bomb Manchurian troop concentrations would bring communist China formally into the Korean war. The Chinese communists have been in the Korean war for six months. They are in it with guns, aircraft, bullets, and men. They could not be involved any more actively than they are at this moment. The president knows this. Yet he appears on radio and television networks to perpetuate the fiction that if General MacArthur had his way the war would spread to communist China.

What more could the Chinese communists do than their present participation in the Korean conflict? And would they be any more aggressive if their soldiers were killed and their supplies destroyed while they still are in Manchuria instead of after they reach Korea?

The president and his secretary of state engage in political whimsy regarding the whole far eastern picture. MacArthur counters with military reality and is sacked for his trouble. Meantime Americans go on dying.

Today there are 180,000 fresh Chinese communist troops in Korea, not yet at the fighting front. There are hundreds of Russian jet planes flying over the combat zone. And while the offensive mounts, Mr. Truman babbles about negotiated peace, now that MacArthur is no longer in command. MacArthur spoke out on what he considered to be the military requirements for winding up the Korean war with victory. The president, at the prompting of Acheson, tries to portray these opinions as an invasion of diplomatic prerogatives and pursues the will of the wisp dream of peace by appeasement.

General MacArthur wanted to use Chinese Nationalist forces on Formosa first in Korea—not in China proper. At first the secretary of state and Mr. Truman insisted that Chiang Kai-Shek's troops were needed to protect Formosa. At the same time, the Navy and Air force were telling Washington that they had sufficient forces to block any amphibious attack which the Chinese communists might make on Formosa.

The president and Acheson now charge that MacArthur wanted the Formosa troops primarily to open a second front on the mainland of China. MacArthur did nothing of the sort. He wanted Chiang's troops in Korea. He knows where they will do the most good despite the Truman-Acheson nonsense.

But when politicians—particularly unprincipled politicians—find themselves in boiling water with public opinion they have to find some way out and if facts are not available, fiction has to serve.

be understood. That new understanding throws light on a theme which repeats itself monotonously through the course of history. A hardy, moral, thrifty, rural people accumulates resources, becomes urbanized, and develops a climax of culture, wealth, and power; then it becomes flabby, corrupt, decadent, and sinks to weak obscurity.

"By living in small, definite social groups, our pre-human ancestors developed human traits. For probably more than 99 per cent of human existence, nearly all men lived in small compact communities, each a definite social organism. Cities have existed for probably less than 1 per cent of that period. Even a century ago, more than 95 per cent of humanity were villagers, as are three-quarters today.

"This age-long association has so adjusted men to small community life that they thrive there as nowhere else. In America, as over the world, most city families die out in a few generations. Cities survive by renewal from small communities. "A typical community is a small human-sized society, continuing through generations. Friends, neighbors, acquaintances, of all ages, sharing many interests and activities, come to have intimate acquaintance, mutual confidence, common values, a feeling of belonging. Assurance of help in trouble gives a sense of security and unity. "Through the ages family and community have been the chief agencies for transmitting human culture from generation to generation. Character is largely fixed in early life. As children see parents and neighbors in many relationships and activities, what they learn becomes second nature. The mutual confidence and respect, co-operation, integrity, and sharing of burdens of the community are the foundations of civilization. Where community dies, these qualities weaken.

"However, the small community has limitations which reduce its value in the modern world. The district work of the State Y.M.C.A. endeavors to overcome these limitations and strives to strengthen and expand essential Christian work in small towns and rural communities."

A Day To Remember

intended, in the white-hot anger that flared up in the White House—to the American people, to the national Congress, and even officially to the royal family of cronies clustered about the side-doors of the White House, it has become "honorable," an accolade, a mark of distinction.

It has indeed become almost an award of merit to be fired by President Truman. His loyalties are strange indeed. He could rise in the Senate to pay homage to the boss of the Pendergast gang, imprisoned for his sins. But for the public servant who exposed the gang, and jailed its moving spirit, the President had long and vindictive anger.

Whom has Mr. Truman dismissed, or even rebuked, for being a conniver or an influence-peddler, a betrayer of faith or a cheap little chiseler? Whom has he ousted for being a sly and contemptible plotter against the Constitution and the American people, a traitorous borer-from-within aiming at destroying our government and our freedom?

For the first group, he has always invoked the shabby excuse of personal loyalty, and for the second the despicable pretext of "red herring."

No, there is no dishonor in having fallen from grace in such a circle of favoritism and easy virtue.

There is an old saying to the effect that "who lies down with the dogs gets up with fleas," and this applies with great force to General MacArthur.

The loyalty and support which he did not inspire from President Truman was exactly the sort of loyalty and support which he gave to both Mr. Truman and to his predecessor, President Roosevelt.

For some fourteen years, he was closely associated with both these Democratic Presidents, and, though himself a Republican, and though he suffered greater embarrassment than perhaps any other one military leader over the repeated errors of judgment on the part of these two administrations, in the main General MacArthur forebore to criticize and recriminate.

A single example: The astounding breakdown which took place in the military, diplomatic and administrative machinery that should have prevented the Pearl Harbor Disaster in 1941, and should in fact have inflicted a serious counter-blow to the Jap forces—the results of this astounding collapse of brains and vigilance in Washington fell with special force upon General MacArthur.

All that the General had accomplished in the Philippine theatre was destroyed at one stroke. He had the humiliation of being driven into flight from an enemy which he could have contained and destroyed, if only his superiors in the military and the government had been equal to their assignments.

But when has General MacArthur attempted to justify his own defeats in the Philippine engagement as being the result, not of errors of his own, but of the blunders and oversights of others in the Roosevelt official family?

Today is MacArthur Day—a day on which the nation and its government stand reverently to honor him. That he should be so honored, universally and earnestly, within a matter of days after his dismissal, is a unique rebuke to the President who discharged him.

Customers' Corner

A few years ago we had quite a few complaints about the delay at our checkout stands.

We worked hard to solve this problem by increasing and improving the stands and training our checkers to do a more efficient job.

Has this effort paid off in your A&P?

Is there a minimum of delay at the checkout stand?

Our checkers strive constantly to be courteous, efficient and accurate.

If you have any suggestions that will help them improve our checkout service, please let us know. Please write:

7 Attend The Bank Management Session

Mr. Frey, "have not been steeped in the virtues of thrift, independence, and the fact that business is honest, but have been brought up on ideologies of security and the abundant life. This modern search for security has resulted in the delegation to the Federal Government of more and more regulation of business and the individual. Efforts of the Federal Government to provide social security, insurance, and aid to individuals has resulted in a managed economy and contributed greatly to the runaway inflation which Regulation X designed to help curtail."

The speaker maintained that competition for housing and materials used in their construction between the government and private individuals is certain to result in higher prices as materials are needed in the preparation of war material. The government has entered into competition with private sources for materials already scarce. Regulation X, by increasing the amount of cash which an individual must have in order to purchase new housing, is endeavoring to reduce the number of prospective buyers, thus relieving the competition which has for some time been driving the cost of housing higher and higher. Mr. Frey declared that in 1950, 1,350,000 dwelling units were commenced by private sources, as compared with 7,000 in the previous peak year of 1925. It is the objective of Regulation X to reduce the number of units commenced during 1951 to 10,000.

History of Banking Presented by Moyer

the time when clay tablets corresponded to commercial paper. In Greece in the fourth century B. C., banking was well established. The Greeks having both state and privately-owned banks," Mr. Moyer continued. He told also of early banking in Rome, then how in the centuries that followed banking degenerated into a "financial makeshift." Coming down to the 17th century, the Bristolian stated that banks performed many of the functions of modern banks. He traced their evolution to "institutions operating along safe and conservative lines."

The first bank in the United States was established in the 18th century the bank stated, the first bank organized being the Bank of North America. "The first federal charter, in 1792, was issued to the First Bank of the United States," he added. The date of the passage of the national banking act was listed as 1863.

The numerous functions of a bank were mentioned—the safe-keeping of valuable papers, duties of trust regarding estates, the serving in the capacity of consultant to lawyers and others; as were also the banks' responsibility to its depositors and borrowers. "A banker must always remember he is dealing with other people's money," commented Mr. Moyer, as he continued to tell of the bank's responsibility to the public in making and refusing loans, which can affect a great many people.

One entering the banking field must meet the following requirements, it was stated: Honesty, intelligence, good judgment, ability to get along with others, and imagination. Suggestions were given as to basic and advanced courses for those considering banking as a career. "We, at The Bristol Trust Company, expect to double or triple our deposits within the next 10 years due to the locating in this area of the United States Steel Co. and the satellite firms," he concluded.

Presiding officer was Ross Buckman, 34 being present. Minutes were read by Miss Hannah Getz. Principal Frank Binder presented the final report for the cafeteria. For the 195 school days, Oct. 16th to April 12th, he stated that 8192 meals were served at an average of 26.5 per day.

The president, Mr. Buckman, asked that all men possible be at the school each taking a hammer and saw on Monday next at 7:30, when they plan to complete work on the basement ceiling. The hope is to complete the job in one evening.

Named as members of a nominating committee were Mrs. Earl Foster, Mrs. Horace Tomlinson, Mrs. Harry Beck, and Mrs. Herman Pettigrew. Election is to be in May. Attendance award went to grade two, Miss Margaret Perry teacher. A "parcel post" sale was conducted; then ice cream with chocolate sauce, peanuts, cup cakes, and coffee were served.

Washington Takes MacArthur To Its Heart

Francisco in eight hours and six minutes, MacArthur came back to a capital town with controversy over his dismissal by President Truman.

The five-star General of the Army is expected to give Congress a defense of the aggressive tactics he demanded in the Korean war.

Leaders of Congress and the Government agree that MacArthur's version of the policy clash with Mr. Truman, which brought about his dismissal, will have a profound world-wide effect.

Only a few hours before he landed, Secretary of State Acheson and Republican policy leader Robert A.

Taft expressed their views on the controversy to the American people.

Acheson told the Women's National Press Club that "one extreme view will be the impatient one that the struggle in Korea can be ended only by the widening of hostilities with the attendant risks, and that any willingness to settle the problems of Korea by peaceful means is tantamount to appeasement."

Taft meanwhile gave the Daughters of the American Revolution a complete endorsement of MacArthur's position. Taft said the U. S. "should use the assistance of all our friends, such as the Chinese Nationalists, and should not hesitate to bomb Chinese communications, airports and armies if that becomes necessary to win the war in Korea."

MacArthur returned to a capital saddened by the death of Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, of Michigan, leader of the GOP faction that gave the U. S. a bipartisan foreign policy in the early postwar years. Congress, after hearing MacArthur, will adjourn out of respect to the memory of the late Senator.

The nation's capital gave itself over to celebrating "MacArthur's Day." A million people are expected to pay him homage before he departs for New York this evening.

The day began when the General's silver Constellation, "The Bataan," landed at National Airport, following a non-stop flight from San Francisco. Earlier, the general received terrific ovations in Honolulu and San Francisco. Thus, he came back to the scene of his command of the entire Army as Chief of Staff, after a 11,000-mile air flight from Tokyo.

His reception at the Airport was somewhat riotous. Hundreds of his friends, Congressional dignitaries and military leaders, broke through police lines as he stepped from the plane. For ten minutes, there was nothing but confusion as MacArthur struggled—as through a football crowd—to reach his car.

A microphone talk to 12,000 Washingtonians, gathered hundreds of yards away behind military lines, was cancelled. So too were welcoming speeches.

Defense Secretary George C. Marshall, also a five-star General, was the first to greet him. He was followed by another five-star General.

Omar Bradley, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. It is reliably reported that both Marshall and Bradley concurred in the President's decision to dismiss MacArthur from his four great Pacific commands.

But MacArthur expressed only good cheer in greeting his military peers.

The President's emissary, Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, drew a special greeting from the hero of Bataan. Third to greet him, MacArthur said to Vaughan:

"Hi, Harry, I'm glad to see you." MacArthur last met Vaughan when he conferred with Mr. Truman at Wake Island last year.

PICTURE MORRISVILLE AS THRIVING TOWN

That Community Featured
In Phila. Electric Co.
Publication

IN "CURRENT NEWS"

"Morrisville" is the title of a story appearing in Current News, publication of the Philadelphia Electric Company. Morrisville is pictured as a thriving, industrial community, 30 miles northeast of Philadelphia. The story reads:

Morrisville, on the banks of the Delaware River, just across from Trenton, is a community that today is waiting as expectantly as a tree bud for the first warm breath of spring. When Morrisville's "spring" arrives, however, it will not bring a short, lush season. It will bring an entirely new set of climatic conditions.

The borough has progressed with modern trends much as other towns its size. It still has maintained some of its original charm and, generally, it has moved quietly about its business, but now it has growing pains which might well make it blossom forth as an industrial giant. Steel has arrived at Morrisville—steel in the form of one of the world's largest steel mills.

Morrisville was first known as Falls of the Delaware, but was renamed in honor of one of its early prominent citizens, Robert Morris, financier of the Revolution. The community was almost chosen as capital of the United States. A resolution to name it the capital was hotly debated and finally defeated by only two votes.

It was the site of the first European settlement in these parts, with members of the Dutch West India Company establishing themselves on a small island in the Delaware in 1624. An outgrowth of this settlement operated a ferry which plied the Delaware more than fifty years before William Penn's arrival in America.

For many years the whole area, on both sides of the Delaware, has been noted for its production of fine-grade clay used in the manufacture of pottery and porcelain. Now, although the clays may be brought from other parts of the world, technical knowledge here has kept the area's high reputation for pottery and other vitreous wares.

One of the oldest manufacturers in Morrisville, the Vulcanized Rubber & Plastics Company, has turned out combs and other hard rubber products more than fifty years. This plant has probably been noticed by almost every traveler going between Philadelphia and New York, situated as it is on Route 1, just east of the old canal. Recently, it has turned its years of experience to work on the newer plastics and is currently expanding.

Robertson Manufacturing Co., again typical of progressive industrial concerns, has branched out from its production of tile to the manufacture of grinding wheels and other abrasive stones of all sizes and shapes.

In comparatively recent months, the Pennsbury Pottery Co. has sprung from a hobby to a full-fledged manufacturing business. It is now turning out decorative pottery in vast quantities each day.

The spirit of progress and advancement illustrated by these concerns existed before the projected steel mill was announced. There is normal, typical American growth.

The stupendous industrial growth heralded by the building of U. S. Steel Corporation's new plant is certainly an exceptional expansion. But it is also very typically American. Virtually overnight, the 3,800 acres of farmland now holding a winter spinach crop will be transformed into a vast network of railroad spurs, coke ovens, blast furnaces, strip mills, and other plant buildings. Thousands of workmen will move on a tight time schedule to grade the land, pour concrete, erect prefabricated steel trusses, install equipment, and start the mill in operation. Then, other thousands of persons—as many as 4,900—will be employed as production workers and supervisory personnel. Most of these employees are to be drawn from the Morrisville area.

In addition to the new Fairless Works of U. S. Steel, many other manufacturing plants are expected to be attracted to the area by the steel mill. In all, some estimates place total new employment at nearly 70,000 persons, as a direct result of the new mill.

This bright horizon for Morrisville will mean great business development and great prosperity.

It may easily mean that Morrisville will become the hub of a gigantic industrial complex that can change the entire Middle Atlantic coast.

In the forefront of this almost fantastic blooming of new industry, the Philadelphia Electric Company has worked and planned with U. S. Steel to provide power requirements for the new integrated mill. P. E. Company is planning for the future expansion of the entire area so that new industry, as well as the greatly expanded established industries, will be assured of adequate electric and gas services. Today's glimpse of Morrisville gives the impression of a quaint, highly stable community, but one which is anxious and confident as it steps into an amazing new era.

YOUR ELECTRICAL SERVANTS are always ready to respond to your command. It's a pity to let them work at less than peak efficiency. Don't neglect them—and don't neglect the wiring that brings the electricity.

Just how old is the wiring in your home? Is it the right size for today's requirements? Is it in good condition?

A lot depends on wiring. Have it looked after. Ask your nearest electrical contractor, mentioned below, to make a free survey and tell you what, if anything, should be done to give you the best possible electric service.

You can easily understand how important it is to you, not only that your electrical appliances are kept in good working order, but that your wiring is adequate and properly maintained to give you all the values of electrical living. So why not call your electrical contractor right now.

Get rid of OCTOPUS OUTLETS

Do you have one of them in your house? They deprive you of the best in electric service... cost you money. Get rid of them!

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

"For The Long Pull?"

WASHINGTON, April 19. Despite the alarming statements Speaker Rayburn and the shock the MacArthur removal, a growing number of thoughtful and informed men not only in the State department but in the Pentagon as well are swinging to the view, previously noted in this space, that the last thing the Soviet Union intends is to precipitate an all-out war with us and our anti-Communist allies.

Neither the ominous massing of Chinese Reds in Korea for hat promises to be another grand-scale attack nor the new troop movements and increased tension reported in the satellite states of eastern Europe after this belief among those who feel this way is some of our abler and more representative abroad. However, their unanimous conviction that this belief in no way sanctions the slightest relaxation of our defense effort. On the contrary, it is vital that we proceed on the assumption that a general war is the Soviet objective; that this war may break out any day now; that we have very little time to prepare. In brief, it easily might be fatal to take a chance. Clearly, the reason the Soviets do not go the limit is because of our conceded superiority in the atomic bomb department.

There is general agreement about that. The argument is that imperialistic dictatorships attack only when they think they can win; that as stronger we grow (and we are doing that daily) the greater the anxiety there will be no Soviet attack. This being so, it would seem to justify an optimistic view of the future. But that is not true at all. Even ruling out the full-scale situation to cheer. For there appears nothing to prevent the "cold war" from continuing for a good many years. This, it is agreed, is a horrible prospect but not at all an improbable one. There are some who think an all-out war would not be very much worse.

The idea, of course, fits in with the basic Russian strategy of promoting our destruction by undermining our domestic economy. By this means, it is held, the eventual wreck of the nation can be accomplished by our enemies just as surely and far more cheaply than by a successful war. By this means we could be made to ruin ourselves. Accordingly, for more than a decade, besides stealing our State secrets and fomenting internal dissension, the Communist effort has been concentrated upon forcing us into a calamitous national bankruptcy from which chaos must ensue. This is so completely provable that it is not open to debate.

Looking back over the last six years what, in pursuit of this policy, Russia has done to us can be clearly seen (1) She has blasted the hope of international peace by deliberately scuttling the United Nations, rendering it feeble, futile and foolish; (2) by her provocative and aggressive acts she has forced us into the Korean war, where we have suffered more than 60,000 casualties and expended billions of dollars. Clearly, the Russians intend to keep the Korean business going indefinitely, which means we must sustain there a very large armed force, suffer more casualties and expend more billions; (3) by her hostile and recalcitrant course in Europe she is compelling us to build up a great American Army over there and pour our uncounted billions to mobilize this country and aid our allies against the threatened assault.

Without precipitating war, this state of affairs, which over a long period would impose an almost intolerable strain on Federal finances and subject our people to almost unbearable taxation, can be continued almost indefinitely by the Soviets — at infinitely less strain and cost to them than to us. And, if after another year, as War Mobilizer Wilson asserts, we shall have become so strong that Russia could not possibly win a war, still, we shall not be able to relax, reduce or retreat. We must continue to pour out the billions for maintenance of our vast armed forces in Asia and Europe; for the replacement of weapons which rapidly become obsolete and for the buttressing of our inescapable leadership of the free world. It will be no more possible then to withdraw than it is possible now. Our economic dislocation is sure to become great and our whole fiscal position fraught with peril.

If things work out in this way (and the only alternative seems to be a general war), the question arises as to how long will the patience and the fortitude of the American people endure? How long will our morale remain steady? Can we outlast the Russians in this "war of nerves"? Can we stick five, ten, fifteen or twenty years of this kind of "cold war" without complete economic collapse? Is our morale of the type to stand up "for the long pull" under such conditions? We have no yardstick by which to measure. Perhaps, something may happen to brighten this view but there is no sense in not realizing that these are the tests we may have to meet.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS WASTE

When kidney function slows down, many folks complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Don't suffer longer with these discomforts if reduced kidney function is getting you down—due to such common causes as stress and strain, over-exercising or exposure to cold. Minor bladder irritations due to cold or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages.

Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While often otherwise caused, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief from these discomforts—help the 15 rules of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!
